Message by Singapore's Minister for Trade and Industry for the ICCS's Annual Directory 2021/2022

CHAN CHUN SING

MINISTER FOR TRADE AND INDUSTRY, SINGAPORE

Over a year has passed since the COVID-19 pandemic first broke out. Faced with a global economic and trading system that has come under immense stress, rising geopolitical tensions, and disrupted lives and livelihoods – it has undoubtedly been a year of unprecedented challenges.

Yet in these times, we have also witnessed businesses evolve with great resilience and their ability to adapt and rebound in order to navigate a permanently changed economy. Singapore has stood steadfast with many countries, including our European partners, to the principles of interdependence and integration, even at the height of the pandemic. As countries turned inwards to soothe domestic pressure, the EU-Singapore Free Trade Agreement (EUSFTA) has been a beacon of the EU and Singapore's unwavering commitment to the free and rules-based global trading system. As a pathfinder agreement, we hope it will continue to encourage us to move towards greater region-to-region connectivity between the EU - the world's largest single market, and ASEAN - poised to be the fourth largest economy in the world by 2030.

Within Singapore, we have had to contend with new ways of working and living as we reopened our economy in a safe and sustainable manner. We thank the Italian Chamber of Commerce in Singapore (ICCS) and Italian businesses for your support and close cooperation in Singapore's management of the COVID-19 pandemic. As of end-2020, there are over 750 Italian businesses in a range of sectors from services, electronics, chemicals to consumer products based in Singapore. We continue to value and welcome the presence of your companies and talent in Singapore.

There are many opportunities for us to work together to build on each other's strengths to come back stronger from this crisis. I ask that you continue to preserve your R&D and innovation activities, and to invest in growing and developing talent. This would allow us to both seize and create new growth opportunities that will help us to rebound quickly. I am confident that Singapore will continue to be a safe harbour for Italian businesses to test and launch innovative solutions and products to serve the region.

Looking ahead, 2021 is an important year for both Singapore and Italy. Singapore will host the World Economic Forum Special Annual Meeting in August 2021 while Italy will host the G20 Summit in October 2021. These events will be important opportunities for both our countries to bring together key decision makers and thought leaders to set the direction for greater integration and interdependence for a strong and sustainable global recovery.

We thank the ICCS for your close partnership in furthering our economic ties over the years, and for being a strong advocate for Italian businesses and Singapore. We look forward to your continued partnership and support in the year ahead.

Message by H.E. Raffaele Langella, Ambassador of Italy to Singapore

Dear ICCS Members and Friends,

I am particularly glad to renew my greetings to the Italian Chamber of Commerce in Singapore.

The Italian Chamber of Commerce is a reliable player, able to support its local and Italian members and develop bilateral relations between Italy and Singapore.

The Italian business community in Singapore is growing, to date, there are more than 300 Italian companies registered in the Country, primarily in the machineries, shipping, retail, and services.

The Italian Chamber of Commerce, which celebrates its 30th Anniversary, the Italian Agency for Foreign Trade, work together with the coordination of the Embassy of Italy to support the growing of Italian companies in Singapore.

I am pleased to highlight that the year 2021 will be characterized by the Italian Presidency of G20 which will take place in Rome in October 2021, and Singapore has been invited by the Italian Government to participate at the Meeting.

Singapore plays a vital role as a gateway to ASEAN with its strategic geographical position, cultural proximity and strong connectivity with other countries in ASEAN. His role has been confirmed even during the COVID-19 crisis.

Italian and Singaporean companies can further develop win-win opportunities in various sectors, last December GIC has confirmed its investment in the Italian company Intercos, the investment is the confirmation of the several business collaboration opportunities between the two Countries.

Message by Alberto Martinelli, ICCS President

ALBERTO MARTINELLI
ICCS PRESIDENT

Dear ICCS Members and ICCS Friends,

ICCS marks in 2021, 30 years of activities considering the early start as Business Association in 1991.

This remarkable achievement is proof over all these years of our Chamber's value proposition seriousness and professionalism. It is also a clear support of the growing Italian Business community in Singapore through a solid base of Memberships.

ICCS Board and Management set and planned a series of events and surprise testimonials to celebrate such prestigious anniversary.

2021 Chambers ambition is to leverage further on the ability to adapt to new technologies and opportunities despite a very challenging environment. Therefore, we will continue to engage our Network through social distancing communication tools and we will provide further visibility on the business chances in Italy, Singapore and on the all-neighbour ASEAN countries.

ICCS Board and Management would like to encourage all members and ICCS friends to keep reaching out the Chamber and its Committees to provide feedback and to engage in new activities: the Chamber is a powerful platform and under the current travel restrictions circumstances, ICCS wants to offer maximum support to our member's initiatives.

As President of the current Board, I feel privileged to count on all ICCS Members constant support, on the tenacious commitment of ICCS Management and the restless contribution of ICCS Staff.

Finally yet importantly, a big thank you to the Institutional Support: to His Excellency Ambassador Raffaele Langella and to the entire Italian Embassy Staff for their continuous and concrete support and to the Honorary Ambassador of Singapore Ow Chiot Kiat for his proximity.

Choosing your new house

Singapore has a wide variety of housing options, with solutions for both young professionals and families. Knowing the type of housing that best suits you will bring you one step closer to finding your dream home. Here are a few options for you.

HDB _ Housing & Development Board flats

These homes have been around since the 1960s. Built by the government's Housing Development Board (HDB), they take the form of high-rise public housing that accommodates over 80% of Singaporeans. These flats are located in residential areas, which are self-contained satellite towns with schools, supermarkets, clinics, hawkker centres, and sports and recreational facilities. HDB flats are a very convenient option for individuals looking for affordable and practical accommodation. NOTE: foreign nationals may only rent HDB flats; only Singaporean citizens are eligible to buy them.

Condominiums

Similar to HDBs in terms of architecture, condominiums (also known as condos) are built and run by private companies. Bonding with the local community is made easy through big social spaces, gyms, swimming pools, communal areas and barbeque areas.

Shophouses and Conservation Homes

These houses date back to the pre-war era and are usually part of two or three storey structures, decorated with colourful shutters or tile work. Originating from the 18th century, shophouses historically featured a shop on the ground floor and a residential space, intended to accommodate one or more families, either at the back of the building or on the second floor.

Similar to shophouses, black-and-white houses are conservation homes offering more distinct reminders of the colonial era in Singapore. Painted white with black trimmings, they range from quaint bungalows to large mansions which include separate guest quarters, parking areas and pool houses.

Serviced Apartments

Lastly, serviced apartments are an excellent choice for temporary accommodation. These fully-furnished apartments include hotel-style perks such as maid services and free buffet breakfasts. Here are a few providers to consider:

Choosing your neighborhood

The next factor to take into consideration is the location of the accommodation. Singapore's neighbourhoods vary greatly and each has its own unique characteristics and history.

City Centre

Orchard - Dhoby Ghaut

Orchard Road's bustling boulevard is a retail and dining paradise, with over 5,000 establishments including prominent shopping malls, restaurants, cinemas, bars, health and wellness centres. All your needs can be met within a mile. Locals and expats are offered the ultimate lifestyle experience, yet many of the surrounding neighbourhoods are green and quiet.

Tanglin - Jervois Road

A walk and a world away from Orchard, Tanglin is a largely residential area that is home to many embassies. With a mix of single-story and mostly low-rise condominiums, the Tanglin area exudes an air of serenity with its tree-lined roads and green surroundings. Although there are no MRT stations nearby, it is easily accessible by bus and strategically located near the Botanic Gardens, Orchard Road and Dempsey Hill. The latter boasts a mix of quaint furniture shops, art galleries, cafes and restaurants.

Robertson Quay - River Valley

Situated between Orchard Road and the Singapore River, Robertson Quay and River Valley are popular areas for young people who want to be near the Central Business District (CBD), so they can enjoy the wide range of amenities on offer and the buzzing nightlife. Robertson Quay boasts modern condominiums with impressive water views. Transportation is made easy via Clarke Quay, Outram and Chinatown MRT stations and the numerous bus services available here.

Central Business District (CBD) - Marina Bay

This area has an abundance of luxurious, high-rise new condominiums and is easily connected to Singapore's financial centre. It also has spectacular views of the island's breath-taking skyline. The small size and relatively high cost of apartments is compensated by the convenience of well-connected underground walkways, home to a large number of shops, supermarkets, restaurants, bars and MRT stations. With the famous Marina Bay Sands Integrated Resort, the Esplanade Theatres and numerous elegant eateries of One Fullerton Bay, you'll never get bored.

Suburbs

Holland Village - Clementi - Bukit Timah

Holland Village is a hamlet tucked away behind the Singapore Botanic Gardens and is less than 10 minutes away from Orchard Road. This little spot has been referred to as Singapore's "Bohemian" enclave because of its variety of art galleries, artisan shoe shops, tarot card readers and shops selling ethnic products. A traditional favourite for expats, Holland Village is served by its own MRT station. Holland Road leads to the Sixth Avenue and Clementi, both of which offer affordable detached houses, apartments and condominiums. A trip to the CBD takes approximately 30 - 40 minutes and the area is close to international schools like the United World College of South East Asia, the Tanglin Trust School and the National University of Singapore, which is Singapore's first university.

Bukit Timah, on the other hand, is a well-established residential area that stretches all the way to the Bukit Timah Nature Reserve. It is close to Orchard Road and international schools and clubs like the Japanese Association, the Hollandse Club and the British Club. It is also home to the Italian Supplementary School (Scuola Supplementare Italiana Singapore), which is strategically located at Bukit Tinggi Road.

Thomson

The Thomson and Upper Thomson areas are home to the MacRitchie, Pierce and Seletar reservoirs. Condominiums here are generally more spacious and affordable. Singapore's famous wildlife attractions (the Singapore Zoo, Night Safari and River Safari) are also nearby, making it a fantastic regular hangout for parents with young children. Moreover, it is served by good bus routes and a new MRT line is being constructed to better serve the area.

West

Upper Bukit Timah Road

To the west of Bukit Timah lies the Upper Bukit Timah area, where you can find a wide choice of good-value condominiums, semi-detached houses and several shopping centres. It also contains Bukit Batok and the Dairy Farm Road, home to a rustic Dairy Farm Nature Park that provides numerous recreational and leisure facilities.

Multiple expressways make it easily accessible for car owners. It now has MRT access as well.

Pasir Panjang

Home to the recently renovated West Coast Park, Pasir Panjang is a new, up-and-coming residential area in Singapore, with its own MRT station and modern condominiums. Aside from the cool breezes of the South China Sea, there is no end to the leisure activities available here, with numerous recreational facilities at the West Coast Park, the Republic of Singapore Yacht Club, the Labrador Nature Reserve and the Tanjong Berlayer Park.

Sentosa

Previously called Pulau Blakang Mati, this popular resort island offers exclusive homes at a high price, complete with unparalleled sea views. Attractions include a 2 km long sheltered beach, biking trails, golf courses, private boat berths and the Resorts World Sentosa, featuring the Universal Studios Singapore theme park. Sentosa offers a respite from the hustle and bustle of city life, without being disconnected from it. A monorail train brings Sentosa residents to Vivo City, one of Singapore's largest shopping malls. The closest MRT station is Harbourfront.

East

East Coast

The East Coast area stretches for 18km and is another popular neighbourhood amongst expats. The East Coast Park, a breezy park with numerous cycling, running and entertainment options makes the East Coast area an attractive neighbourhood for getting together with family and friends. The area provides a variety of housing options for various budgets and the East Coast Parkway (ECP), Kallang-PayaLebar Expressway (KPE) and Pan-Island Expressway (PIE) provide easy access to the city and to the airport. International schools such as the United World College of South East Asia (UWCSEA), the Canadian International School and the Chatsworth International School also have their campuses here.

Katong

Affectionately known as the 'Home of the Peranakans', the Katong/Joo Chiat area is a treasure trove of well-preserved heritage shophouses, quaint shops and restaurants catering for the culinary needs of this traditional and unique community. A perfect blend of modern and colonial bungalows and large shopping malls such as Parkway Parade and I12 Katong are also scattered around the area.

Siglap - Bedok

One of the oldest residential areas in Singapore, the Siglap and Bedok areas are far from the city centre but are jewels in their own right. They offer a village-like tranquillity that stands in contrast to the busy urban atmosphere that Singapore is known for. As a result of their long history, housing options are remarkably varied, from HDB apartments to townhouses, condominiums to spacious, detached bungalows. The areas are also well served by MRT connections running along to the EXPO Convention and Exhibition Centre, as well as to the airport.

North

Woodlands

Woodlands is another favourite among many expats primarily for its spacious, reasonably-priced houses, and the strategically-located Singapore American School. Not only does this area have a suburban ambience, it is also near the Woodlands Checkpoint: one of the two access points from Singapore to Malaysia

Seletar - Yio Chu Kang - Yishun

Right in the heart of Singapore, this area offers plenty of affordable houses and condominiums. Seletar Air Base has a small cluster of black-and-white houses which you can apply for (see 'types of housing'). The area is convenient for parents who wish to send their children to the American, Australian and French schools, as well as the GEMS World Academy.

Getting around Singapore

Singapore's transport system is highly efficient and easy to navigate. The various modes of transport used on the island are as follows.

Driving / Riding

Non-Singaporeans can drive on Singapore's roads, provided that they have an International Driver's Permit. Should your license be in another language, make sure you carry an English translated version of it. Drivers have a one-year grace period to obtain a Singapore driver's license, unless they become Permanent Residents, at which point a license conversion has to be done. This would require one to take the Basic Theory Test which can be booked online or at any one of the three driving centres located on different parts of the island. Below are the names of the schools and links to their websites:

Comfort DelGro Driving Centre -

Singapore Safety Driving Centre -

If you do not have a driving license and wish to obtain one, you can also sign up at any of the above-mentioned schools.

Public Transportation

BUSES AND TRAINS

Singapore is equipped with one of the world's best rail and bus networks, making it convenient and affordable to commute by train or bus. Trains and buses operate from 5.30am to as late as 1am, depending on the location.

Bus times can be tracked on Apps such as "MyTransport" and "SBS Transit Iris". These Apps also allow you to plan your journey by showing all the possible routes between your starting point and final destination. There are currently several train lines in Singapore. There are also Light Rail Transits (LRTs) that link MRT stations with HDBs public housing estates to reach as many residential areas as possible.

Payments for train and bus rides can be made with a simple swipe of an EZ-Link card, which is a pre-paid smart card that allows you to pay for all your public transport travel. You can purchase one at most MRT stations and 7-11 stores. Cash payment is also accepted, but this is highly impractical on buses and also rather inconvenient for the MRT.

TAXIS

Taxi services in Singapore are run by Comfort & Citycab, SMRT Taxis, TransCab, Grab and Prime Taxi. Getting a taxi is generally easy as they can be flagged down on the main road. However, if you are hard-pressed for time, you can also call the hotlines to make a booking. This can also be done in advance with a pre-booking service.

The numbers to the hotlines can be found in the links below:

International School

THE INTERNATIONAL SCHOOL LANDSCAPE IN SINGAPORE AND HOW TO CHOOSE A SCHOOL

GEMS
World Academy
Singapore

First Steps in Choosing an International School

Choosing a new school in a new country can be daunting for expatriate parents. It is usually the first choice parents must make even before arriving, and often determines choosing of the location of their new home. Although parents are able to enrol their child in local schools, international schools remain a popular choice.

Parents are presented with four options in Singapore:

- Local Schools (by the Ministry of Education)
- Foreign Schools:
 - a. National: Dedicated to following the curriculum of one particular country
 - b. Mixed: Incorporate some international school ideas into a national curriculum
 - c. True International: Follow a purely international curriculum.

Many international schools follow an international curriculum such as the International Baccalaureate Programme (IB), which encourages students to think independently and be drivers of their own learning. International schools also expose students to a variety of different cultures, which can help them to develop communication skills that will be beneficial when they enter the workforce, in an increasingly globalised and rapidly changing world. Some international schools have a strong sports or arts programme while others cater more to a specific nationality. Nevertheless, a number of factors should be considered when picking an international school to ensure that your child can make the best of his/her schooling experience.

QUALITY OF TEACHERS

While a parent is a child's first teacher, it is crucial that we recognise that individual learning development is impacted most by the educator's interaction with the children on a regular basis.

CURRICULUM OFFERED

Time must be spent ensuring that there is a best fit for the child. The school philosophy, culture and demographics are all important elements to consider. Curriculum models must support the smooth transition of children into the school, equip students with skills to be resilient in the ever-changing future, while opening up suitable pathways and preparing students for further development.

VALUE-ADDED PROGRAMMES

The additional programmes provided by schools ensure that a balanced learning environment is supported. These programmes include extra-curricular activities across sports, arts and academics. Students should be encouraged to pursue their interests via an extensive extra-curricular programme that incorporates both competitive teams, clubs and enrichment programmes. From golf, horseback riding and dance, to soccer, rugby and basketball, there is something on offer to suit children of all interests and abilities. Visiting the school and meeting the Senior Education Leadership Team at the school is a great way to familiarise with the faculty members and help make a decision on which school best fits your child. Parents must be able to meet and speak to the Head of School, Principal, or the Senior Education Leadership Team to find out more about the school's core values, curriculum and extra-curricular activities.

5 Parent Expectations All Schools Must Meet

The international education landscape of Singapore is a vibrant scene. With increasing competition, now more than ever, all schools should be looking at how they can successfully exceed the expectations of their parents. Below are the five key components all parents should expect of their child's schools in Singapore:

- 1. Purpose: In 60 seconds or less, every school stakeholder should be able to articulate to friends, family, prospective families, and colleagues what makes the school unique and an incredibly positive experience for children. The school's purpose must be clearly connected to an articulated vision for the school, a vision which all school stakeholders are aware of and have a vested interest in bringing to fruition. If it takes more than 60 seconds to capture these statements, then the core essence is not clear, nor is the vision of the school.

2. Transparency: An informed parent is a satisfied parent. As an example, the admissions process in many schools across Asia is a murky area for families to wade through. The debenture systems of schools in places such as Hong Kong, the waiting list marketing campaigns of some schools in Singapore, and the at times brutal multiple months of testing and pleading that families have to undergo, is leading to a poor perception of the regional education sector. Any great school that has a defined value statement, should be looking at ways to make their processes, policies and procedures as transparent and simple as possible. Fee structures, discipline procedures and expectations of students, teachers and families should be addressed in an effort to strengthen the place of the school in the specific market context.
3. Excellent Communication: Parents universally report that the superior communication skills of school leadership, admissions staff and teachers is often the crucial factor in determining their levels of satisfaction. This communication should be demonstrated consistently from the first school tour through face-to-face interaction, highly visible leadership, use of social media tools to keep the community informed, simple, functional, and well-branded school web portals.

4. Easy Access to School Leaders: Visible school leadership is a significant component of all outstanding schools. Be very wary of schools who do not provide easy access to school leaders. Superior school principals in successful organizations are highly visible, fantastic communicators, transparent and honest in their statements and personally embody the larger school brand. At the heart of these leaders is their availability to speak with prospective and current families.
5. Individual Learning Focus: A great school understands the unique attributes of each student, their history, current goals and future aspirations. Every teacher should be consistently reinforcing to parents that they are vested partners in supporting the learning development of every individual child. The moment a teacher says, "I have too many students" or "Your child just needs to do what everyone else is doing", parents should be in contact with school leadership and, in extreme cases, move to a school more committed to their individual child. No parent should accept cookie-cutter approaches to education.

While schooling in Singapore is generally of high quality, parents should be committed to finding the school that best suits their child. Not all schools suit all families; however, schools that are able to comfortably meet the five expectations discussed above are more likely to provide wonderful learning opportunities to all students.

The Challenges and Solutions, or Pros and Cons, of Attending an International School

There are a number of challenges when opting for an International School education for your child. Here are some tips on how to face those challenges and what to look for when selecting an international school:

Challenge One: English Language Proficiency

The use of the English language can present a challenge, especially if the child and family have limited experience with the language. Communication from the school will all be in English, as will the social events and school functions.

Solution: Support

As with any overseas posting, there has to be some personal commitment. Enrolling in additional English Language classes may be necessary for your child (although the school provision for English should be adequate) but is going to be even more so for you. You should also be able to get some help from the school. Always ask a prospective school what support they can provide, not just to your child but also you as a parent.

Challenge Two: Different Model Of Education

International school education is almost entirely 'student-centered'; the teachers are not the classroom rulers who impart their wisdom – they facilitate learning through exploration and argument. Students are encouraged to develop different opinions and to challenge long accepted principles. Parents have to accept that the way education is imparted may be very different from their own experience as a student.

Solution: Embracing Global Opportunities

Children are incredibly flexible and after an initial period of somewhat reserved behavior, they emerge to thoroughly enjoy a less conservative classroom. As a parent it is often the case that you just need to be accepting. After all, it was largely your decision to take advantage of an international education for your child – you should anticipate and encourage the differences. Your children are not rebelling – they are just learning differently!

Challenge Three:
Maintaining Mother Tongue

The loss of Mother Tongue can be a challenge. It is an increasingly problematic occurrence that international school students reach senior high school with two second languages and no first language. This can be highly damaging to university entrance prospects and future employment. As the most basic and profound expression of culture, language is also critical in maintaining cultural identity.

Solution: Mother Tongue Programmes

As the term Mother Tongue suggests, some of the responsibility here (as with all aspects of bringing up children) lies with the parents. Additionally, the school should also recognise the crucial importance of Mother Tongue languages and provide opportunities for students to maintain and develop their language skills.

Challenge Four: Returning Home

Having been exposed to the non-conservative ways of international schooling, there is a fear among parents that their children will not be able to reintegrate into their society. There is also a concern that universities and employers will not give full recognition to their qualifications.

The Solution: Great Pathways Available

Recent research by Keio University shows that actually this fear is mainly felt by parents and much less often realised by children. There will clearly be differences in the way they think and behave, but these are all the same reasons why you chose an international school in the first place!

The MYP and IGCSE Programmes, studied in many international schools, act as perfect preparation for the qualifications that really matter to universities and employers – those taken in Grades 11 and 12. At a truly IB school, students graduate with a High School Diploma, IB Courses Certificate, the IB Diploma or the IB Career-related Programme Certificate. Any of these is sufficient and, in many cases, preferred, to gain access to most top universities.

GEMS (Singapore) believes that some of life's most important lessons can be learned outside text books. That's why they have created a vibrant environment through countless opportunities in technology, sports, arts, innovation, community service and extracurricular activities.

GEMS World Academy (Singapore) was recently acquired by XCL Education, Southeast Asia's largest and fastest growing K-12 education platform. Our mission is to produce the best outcomes for our students, not just with excellent, world-class academics and co-curriculars, but also with the tools, mindset, and exposure they need to confidently navigate the uncertain future, find their own place, and leave their own mark in the world.

We believe K-12 students need to prepare for:

- More rapid economic and social change than ever before
- Jobs that have not yet been created
- Using technologies which have not yet been invented
- Solving social, economic and environmental problems that we do not yet know will arise.

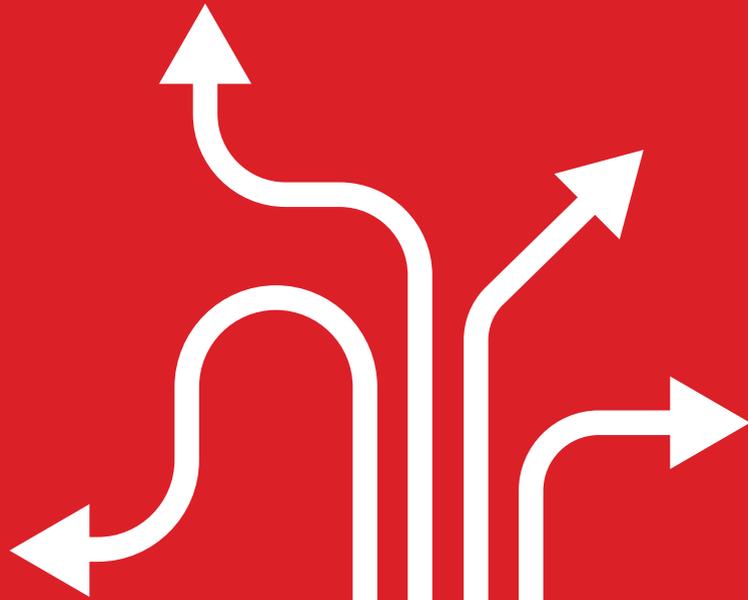

To prepare students for this future, we believe in taking an approach that develops academic abilities alongside critical human skills (critical thinking creativity, leadership, empathy, teamwork, grit, adaptivity, self-motivation and digital proficiency).

SINGAPORE, THE GATEWAY TO ASIA
A BRIEF GUIDE FOR DOING BUSINESS IN SINGAPORE

CURATED BY
FIDINAM SINGAPORE
PTE. LIMITED

Singapore, one of the smallest nations in the world, is consistently ranked among one of the easiest places to do business¹ and it has provided one of the world's most successful response to the Covid-19 pandemic.

Strategically located at the very heart of Asia, while a small island with few natural resources, Singapore boasts an ambitious and imaginative population and is situated perfectly on one of the world's largest trade routes. The island has consistently leveraged its advantages into one of the world's most attractive business ecosystems.

The City-State has established itself as global gateway into other emerging markets in the region and many global international enterprises and private investors have chosen to set up their bases here: whether you are a foreign individual, a small and medium company or a multinational, Singapore remains the most attractive destination in Asia Pacific to get a foothold into the fast-growing Asian region with its flourishing prosperity, burgeoning middle class, and overall growing affluence. With its ease of doing business, attractive tax system, respect for intellectual property rights and political stability Singapore further reassures any foreign investor planning an expansion in the region on a long-term basis.

This guide provides a preliminary overview on doing business in Singapore, navigating you through the most common business structures, the tax framework and immigration requirements to conduct your business, either as a person or a corporation.

The information provided is general in nature and should not be relied upon as tax, corporate or professional advice.

General

The most common structures for doing business in Singapore are the following:

- a. Representative Office ('RO'): RO is a preferred short-term arrangement for a foreign corporation willing to assess the Singapore business environment. A RO is not allowed to generate profits, and it may operate for a maximum of three years, thereafter the foreign corporation must either set-up a permanent business structure or terminate its presence in Singapore.
- b. Branch Office: Branch Office is an extension (and not a subsidiary) of a foreign corporation: as such it is not a separate legal entity and its debts and liabilities are part of the debts and liabilities of the foreign corporation. It is taxed as non-resident entity without inheriting any tax benefit in Singapore.

- c. Private Company Limited by Shares: this entity has separate legal personality in Singapore. It can benefit from any tax incentives and scheme granted by the Singapore Government.

In comparison all the mentioned business models, private company limited by shares is preferred for foreign investors since it is (i) a separate legal entity, (ii) suitable with the scale of most business activities; and (iii) limited liability for shareholder. Below is the detail information of private company limited by shares.

The Private Limited Company

A private limited company is a business entity registered under the Companies Act (Cap 50) (the 'Act'), where the number of shareholders is limited to 50 or less and where the right to transfer shares is restricted. An exempt private company has no more than 20 individual shareholders and none of its shareholders is corporations.

INCORPORATION REQUIREMENTS

- Shareholder: Have at least one shareholder, who can be a natural person or a corporate entity. No more than 50 shareholders, otherwise it will be a public company.
- Capital: Minimum paid up capital is SGD 1.00. It can be increased at any time.
- Director: At least one director that must be 'ordinarily resident' in Singapore, i.e being a Singaporean resident (Citizen of Singapore or Permanent resident). Employment Pass (EP) holder may be accepted as director if employed by the company concerned.
- Address: A physical (residential or commercial) local address must be provided as the registered address of the company. Mailbox are not accepted.

- Secretary: Within six months of incorporation, a Singapore based company secretary must be appointed; the secretary cannot be also a director of the company.
- Auditor: Within three months from the incorporation day, the company must appoint an auditor, except for small companies which are exempt from auditing obligation.

Further to the usual corporate books, private companies are required to maintain Beneficial Ownership (BO) information in the form of a Register of Registrable Controllers, and to make this information available to government agencies upon request. A Controller is defined as an individual or a legal entity that has a "significant interest" in or "significant control" over the company.

ANNUAL COMPLIANCE:

- The Annual General Meeting and the Annual Return:

During the annual general meeting (AGM), the directors of the company present the Financial Statement to shareholders. A company must hold the AGM within 6 months from the end of the financial year and file the Annual Return with ACRA within the next 30 days. Under certain circumstances, private companies do not need to hold AGMs if all members have approved a resolution to dispense with the holding of AGMs.

Due to the COVID-19 outbreak, since companies may face difficulties to convene AGM for, among others, approve Annual Returns, they have been authorized to convene AGM by electronic means.

- Filing income tax declaration:

Enterprises in Singapore must conduct the following tax filing with the Inland Revenues Authority in Singapore (IRAS):

- a. Estimated Chargeable Income (ECI):

Within 3 months after the end of the financial year, unless the company is exempted from the RCI submission (i.e., because it is not profitable and the annual revenue is not more than $5 million for the financial year).

- b. Tax Return: within 30 November of the following year, or 15 December for e-file.

Taxation: Corporate Tax

Singapore Companies and branches are subject to Singapore corporate income tax on all income derived from sources in Singapore, and on income from sources outside Singapore if received in Singapore. Capital gains are not taxable in Singapore.

- Gains or profits from any trade or business;
- Income from investment such as dividends and interest;
- Royalties, premiums, rents and any other profits from property;
- Other gains of an income nature.

GENERAL CORPORATE TAXCorporate Income Tax:

A company is taxed at a flat rate of 17% on its chargeable income. Income tax must be paid upon the income accruing in or derived from Singapore or received in Singapore from an overseas country in respect of:

Foreign-source income is subject to tax in Singapore only if that income received in Singapore does not fall under the provision of the tax exemption for Foreign-Sourced Income.

All companies can enjoy a partial tax exemption on the chargeable income, as below indicated:

FROM YEAR OF ASSESSMENT 2020 ONWARDS

Chargeable Income	Exempted Percentage	Exempted Income
First S$ 10,000	@75%	= S$ 7,500
Next S$ 190,000	@50%	= S$ 95,000
Total S$ 200,000		= S$ 102,500

For tax payable in the Year of Assessment (“YA”) 2020 a CIT rebate of 25%, capped at S$ 15,000, was granted to all Singapore companies; CIT rebate for YA2021 has not yet being confirmed by the Ministry of Finance.

If a company incurs a loss carrying on trade and business, that loss can be deducted against the next year statutory income (if any). Under certain condition, loss can be brought forward and deducted without limitation in time. However, it must be deducted in the first available year where there is a statutory income.

Capital gain

Singapore imposes tax on trading income.

Gain derived from investment, such as the sale of property, shares and financial instruments are not taxable in Singapore. Alienation of property from “trading in properties” might be taxed under certain circumstances.

Dividend

All dividends paid by resident companies are exempt in the hands of shareholders, either if paid out in Singapore or overseas.

Foreign dividends received by a Singapore company are offshore sources of income and therefore not subject to tax until they are remitted to Singapore. Once remitted to Singapore, the foreign dividends are in principle taxed at a rate of 17% unless the foreign dividend is tax exempt under the provision of foreign sourced income, in the Income Tax Act.

Withholding tax

Singapore has a withholding tax regime to ensure the collection of income tax from non-resident on income which are sourced or deemed sourced in Singapore. The Withholding tax rate depends on the type of income, the status of the recipient and the Double Taxation Agreement signed with the country of residence of the recipient of the income. The most common income subject to withholding tax are the following:

- Interest paid by a Singapore company: interest, commissions, fees or other payments in connection with any loan or indebtedness are subject to a final withholding tax of 15% on the gross amount, unless reduced under a more favorable tax treaty.
- Royalties paid by a Singapore company: Royalties paid to non-resident are generally subject to a final withholding tax of 10% on the gross amount of the royalty, unless reduced under a more favorable tax treaty.
- Fees for technical assistance and management assistance paid by a Singapore company: fees paid in connection with the application of technical information or with the assistance in the management of any trade are subject to a non-final withholding tax of 17%, unless reduced under a more favorable tax treaty.

- Dividends paid by Singapore company: Singapore does not levy any withholding tax on dividends.

STARTUP TAX EXEMPTION SCHEME

Tax exemptions apply to certain newly incorporated companies for the first three consecutive Years of Assessment following the incorporation if all the following conditions are met:

- the company must be incorporated in Singapore;
- the company must be tax resident in Singapore for such Year of Assessment (YA); and
- the company must have less than 20 shareholders (with at least one individual shareholder holding at least 10% of the issued ordinary shares).

The tax exemption scheme is as follow:

FROM YA 2020

Chargeable Income	Exempted Percentage	Exempted Income
First S$ 100,000	@75%	= S$ 75,000
Next S$ 100,000	@50%	= S$ 50,000
Total S$ 200,000		= S$ 125,000

GOODS AND SERVICE TAX

Goods and Service Tax or GST is a broad-based consumption tax levied on nearly all supplies of goods and services in Singapore, as well as on the import of goods (collected by Singapore Customs). In other countries, GST is known as Value-Added Tax.

The standard GST rate is 7%; however, goods that are exported and international services are zero-rated, while provision of financial services and lease of residential properties are exempt.

The GST Tax Rate was planned to increase from 7% to 9% sometime between 2021 and 2025. Given the current economic headwinds, the Minister of Finance decided that the prospected GST rate hike will not take effect in 2021 and will remain at 7%.

Every company is liable to register for compulsory GST if the annual value of the taxable turnover is more than 1 million SGD or it is expected to be more than this threshold.

You may also choose to voluntarily register for GST by submitting the request to IRAS, that can approve or not at its own discretion.

SINGAPORE BUDGET 2021

The Budget 2021 “Emerging Stronger Together” unveiled measures to strengthen the backbone of Singapore’s ecosystem and provide ammunition to overcome the difficult situation propelled by the COVID-19 pandemic.

The Ministry of Finance has announced that Singapore has set aside $11 billion for a COVID-19 Resilience Package. This Package will have three prongs:

- First, to address the immediate needs to safeguard public health and re-open safely;
- Second, to support workers and businesses where needed; and
- Third, to target support for sectors that are still under stress.

As part of the second prong of the Package Singapore has committed over $25 billion to the Jobs Support Scheme (JSS) – introduced in the 2020 Budget – and supported over 150,000 employers for up to 17 months.

In the 2021 budget, the MoF has committed to continue to provide the JSS targeted towards sectors that continue to be hard hit. The JSS will be therefore extended for firms in Tier 1 and 2 sectors by up to six months, covering wages paid up to September 2021. This will provide continued support for businesses and workers in sectors that continue to be hard-hit amidst the protracted economic downturn:

- For firms in Tier 1 sectors – aviation, aerospace, and tourism. Firms in these sectors will receive 30% support for wages paid from April to June 2021, and 10% support for wages paid from July to September 2021.
- For firms in Tier 2 sectors, such as retail, arts and culture, food services, and built environment, that are currently receiving 30% JSS support, will receive 10% for three months, covering wages paid up from April to June 2021.

- For firms in Tier 3A sectors, JSS will continue covering wages up to March 2021, as previously announced. Overall, businesses in these sectors are generally recovering.

The third prong of the COVID-19 Resilience Package is to provide more targeted support for the worst-hit sectors, which continue to be adversely affected in 2021. They will need help to maintain capabilities and eventually recover. The Government has forecasted a cost of $ 870 million to support the aviation sector and $133 million for the land transport sector.

As the employment landscape is undergoing fundamental changes, the Singapore government has launched several initiatives, the most important being the Jobs Growth Incentive and the Wage Credit Scheme. The Jobs Growth Incentive (or JGI) supports employers to accelerate their hiring of local workers between September 2020 to September 2021 (inclusive), to create good, long-term jobs for locals. If the Qualifying Criteria for the Firms are met - employers must have an overall increase in local headcount and increase in locals earning of at least $1,400 per month, compared to their local workforce in the baseline month – for non-mature local hires there is an incentive 25% on first $5,000 of gross monthly wages for up to 12 months.

In January 2021 the Singapore Economic Development Board has launched the Tech Pass, a new work visa specifically dedicated to top-tier foreign professionals and experts looking to start businesses, lead corporate teams or teach in Singapore.

Tax Consideration for Italian Individuals

Every country has right to levy tax on income which falls within the country's tax net, that means the nexus or link between the country and the taxpayer, property or transaction. The extent of each country's tax net is stated in its tax legislation. In general, there are two different tax systems, namely:

- Worldwide tax system, under which a country would tax its fiscal residents on all their income arising anywhere in the world.
- Pure territorial system, under which a jurisdiction would tax only income sourced within that jurisdiction.

Italy applies the worldwide tax system. Singapore, instead, applies a variation of the Territorial System, and therefore it taxes all income accrued or derived in Singapore or received in Singapore from outside Singapore. Resident individual in Singapore are taxed only on income sourced in Singapore and are granted with an exemption on the foreign-sourced income remitted in Singapore.

The application of Italian system and/or Singapore system depends on the tax residency status of the individual, either in a country or/and in the other country. Moreover, tax residency is not exclusive that means that being tax resident in Singapore does not imply to not be tax resident in Italy, as well.

We would like to highlight three common situations that Italian expatriates may face:

ITALIAN INDIVIDUAL MOVING BACK TO ITALY

It is common practice that an Italian expatriate, when returns at the status of Italian tax residence, maintains a bank account or financial investment in Singapore. All financial investments owned outside of Italy by an Italian tax resident are subject to the Italian Wealth Tax on financial investments owned outside of Italy. The taxable base is the value of the financial investment as of 31 December or the end of the holding period and the applicable tax rate is equal to 0.2%.

LAVORATORI "IMPATRIATI"

Expatriates who move back to Italy may enjoy a partial tax exemption of the Italian employment income, as follows:

- Tax exemption of the 70% of the Italian employment income, from the year of assessment in which the residence is transferred and for the following four years.
- Tax exemption of the 90% of the Italian employment income, if the residence is taken in certain regions, namely Abruzzo, Molise, Campania, Puglia, Basilicata, Calabria, Sardinia and Sicily.

The above scheme applies provided all the following conditions are met:

- The individual was not a resident in Italy in the two tax periods prior to the transfer,
- The individual undertakes to reside in Italy there for at least two years, and

- The employment activity is carried out in the Italian territory.

TAXATION FOR PUBLIC SECURITY CONTRIBUTIONS

In Singapore, in general, contributions made by an employer in respect of an employee to any overseas pension or provident fund are taxable for the employee. However, on a case by case basis, these contributions may be granted with an exemption and, consequently, may not be taxed if the following conditions are met:

- The contributions are made to a government pension scheme or social security scheme;
- The contributions are compulsory by law; and
- The contributions are neither borne nor claimed by the Singapore company or Permanent Establishment.

Given Singapore's humidity, water activities, such as water playgrounds and swimming pools, are especially welcome. Swimming pools and sports centres (often including extras such as gym facilities) are strategically located around the island, so families can keep fit by swimming together. Getting to know the local cultures

As a nation that's home to a wide range of cultures, ethnicities and religions, Singapore's diversity is its strength. The majority of the population is made up of ethnic Chinese people (76,2%), Malays (15,0%), and ethnic Indians (7,4%) and each community has its own festivities, traditions and practices.

Singapore has a strong connection with its past, honouring its history by drawing from its eclectic mix of cultures.

Chinatown

As the name suggests, Chinatown is the home of authentic Chinese culture where you can buy traditional merchandise and souvenirs such as snacks, costumes, decorations and crockery, to name just a few. It is particularly lively during the Chinese New Year season (January/February), with pop-up stores selling traditional Chinese snacks, streamers and decorations depicting the animal of the year.

Little India

A small enclave in Farrer Park/Serangoon Road, Little India is the home of traditional Indian culture. There are several stores selling different types of delicious Indian and fusion food, all claiming that their food is mouth-wateringly good and the best Indian cuisine you will ever eat. There are also shops selling traditional costumes, jewellery and spices, a fundamental aspect of Indian cooking. There are also three temples along in this part of town.

Kampong Glam - Arab Street

Similar to Chinatown and Little India, Kampong Glam sells traditional Malay products such as (to name a few) fabrics, traditional garments, spices and food. Likewise, in Arab Street you can browse the Malay and Arabic merchandise, including clothes and food items. It also offers delicious Mediterranean and Mexican food that is highly appreciated by locals and expats alike.

Healthcare

Healthcare in Singapore

Singapore boasts one of the best healthcare systems in the world, ranked 6th by the World Health Organization in 2016. It provides easy access and its standards, not only in curative medicine but also in prevention, are exemplary. There is no shortage of medical professionals available to take care of your healthcare needs.

Healthcare in Singapore - how it works

In Singapore, healthcare is delivered via a multi-functional approach consisting of outpatient primary care, specialist care and hospitalization.

Finding a doctor

Whilst doctors can be found practically everywhere in Singapore, it is important to find one who understands your individual needs. There are General Practitioners (GPs) and specialist physicians in Singapore who are highly qualified to look after your primary healthcare needs.

Types of Doctors

General Practitioners (GPs)

Across Singapore, there are approximately 1,500 GP clinics. Since there are so many clinics, it's pretty likely that you'll be able to find one that is relatively convenient to visit no matter where you are in Singapore.

GPs are qualified to address your primary medical needs and can give annual check-ups and other basic tests. GPs have flexible working hours and are generally open all day until about 8.30pm. Some clinics operate 24 hours a day and are open on weekends and public holidays.

Polyclinic Doctors

There are currently 20 polyclinics, located throughout the country and distributed in a manner which is proportionate to the population density.

They are open from 8.30am – 4.30pm Monday to Friday and 8am – 12.30pm Saturday. They are closed on Sundays and Public Holidays.

For more information visit the following websites:

SingHealth Polyclinics:

www.polyclinic.singhealth.com.sg

National Healthcare Group Polyclinics:

www.nhgp.com.sg

Both General Practitioners and Polyclinic Doctors may refer you to a specialist, if necessary. However, if you have been able to carry out a self-diagnosis, you may want to contact the specialist directly. These specialists typically do not have a centralised website or directory, but a quick internet search will provide you with plenty of options.

Paediatrician

A local medical physician who treats infants, children, and adolescents. Many of us think of Paediatricians as GPs for children, when in fact they are specialists. Paediatricians are not to be confused with Paediatric Surgeons who are trained as General Surgeons. After GPs and dental clinics, Paediatric clinics are the most common types of clinics found in residential areas.

Gynaecologist / Obstetrician

A surgeon who treats problems related to women's reproductive organs. Doctors who deal mainly with pregnant women and childbirth might be considered Obstetricians. Some do not deliver babies but deal mostly with other gynaecological issues. For example, a Gynaecological Oncologist is a gynaecologist trained to treat women with cervical cancer and endometriosis and perform other complex surgeries.

Orthopaedic Surgeon

A surgeon who treats patients for problems and injuries affecting their spine, bones, ligaments, tendons and joints. This might include fractures, hip or knee replacements and amputations. Orthopaedic surgeons often work hand in hand with Cosmetic or Plastic Surgeons.

Otolaryngologist

You may have never heard this term; an Otolaryngologist is a Head & Neck Surgeon, commonly known as an ENT Specialist (Ear, Nose and Throat). ENT or Head & Neck Surgeons are not to be confused with Neurosurgeons who perform surgery on the brain and spine.

Other Healthcare Practitioners:

Chiropractic

Chiropractic is a form of alternative medicine that aims to address musculoskeletal issues with massages and mechanical adjustment, particularly in the spine.

NOTE: Chiropractors are not doctors. www.chiropractic.org.sg

Physiotherapy

Physical therapy, also known as physiotherapy, is one of the allied health professions. It uses mechanical force and movements, manual therapy, exercise therapy and electrotherapy to cure impairments and promote mobility and function. A variety of clinics can be found on the web.

Nutritionists & Dietetics

Nutritionists aim to improve overall health and wellness by recommending changes in diet. They can advise on how to lower the consumption of certain nutrients and provide guidance on meal and snack planning.

Find out more on the Singapore Nutritionists and Dietetics Association's website: www.snda.org.sg

Hospitals

There are 9 public hospitals: 7 general hospitals, a women's and children's hospital and a psychiatry hospital. As with clinics, there are both public and private hospitals in Singapore which are equally hygienic, well-respected and efficient.

State Hospitals

Singapore's public hospitals are spread around the island, catering to the needs of residents, irrespective of their location.

Private Hospitals

At private hospitals, patients can typically expect to be admitted within an hour after seeing an emergency room doctor. Just like public hospitals, all private hospitals offer a wide range of medical services and have 24-hour Accident & Emergency departments.

Private practice doctors generally operate from specialist centres, which in turn are often connected to nearby private hospitals. Here are a few well-known, privately-owned specialist medical centres/hospitals:

PARKWAY MEDICAL

The largest private medical provider in Singapore, Parkway operates from the Mount Elizabeth Novena Hospital, Mount Elizabeth Hospital, Gleneagles Hospital and Parkway East Hospital. Allied Healthcare Services

Singapore also boasts a wide range of supporting allied health services. Do some research and ask your local and expat friends for advice on accredited and effective professional allied healthcare service providers. The following section looks in more detail at three areas that are becoming increasingly prevalent here in Singapore.

TRADITIONAL AND COMPLEMENTARY HEALTHCARE

While the healthcare systems in Singapore are deeply rooted in the Western model, the presence of diverse Asian ethnic groups has also seen the introduction and adoption of alternative medicinal forms. These healthcare practices focus on holistic and natural treatments, to improve strength and wellbeing.

When looking for such complementary therapies, which you may never have used, you should inform the practitioner about your medical history, any treatments you have received/are receiving and of any medicine you are taking. The various forms of traditional/complementary medicine are as follows:

TRADITIONAL CHINESE MEDICINE (TCM)

The most common form of complementary therapy in Singapore, it is so popular that Singaporeans often choose it over western medicine. TCM is often used to treat issues such as chronic neck, knee or back pain, arthritis, sports injuries, sciatica, migraines and help with weight loss, to name a few. It is highly respected and considered particularly effective for those with allergies. Reputable TCM clinics that you might consider are:

La Braceria

ABOUT THE RESTAURANT

Family owned and operated Italian restaurant in Bukit Timah, Singapore. We opened our doors on September 2005. Since that day Fabio Iannone, his family and his staff have been serving up the best Italian food in Singapore. After three successful years in Greenleaf Road (along Sixth Avenue), the restaurant moved in to Greendale Avenue where it is a hidden gem of an Italian restaurant that is tucked behind a more conspicuous row of restaurants in the Greenwood enclave in Bukit Timah.

La Braceria is renowned for its authentic, southern Italian cuisine, a gastronomic tribute to Italy's Neapolitan region. Menus are changed seasonally to reflect the authenticity of the food while using the very finest Italian ingredients and what is freshest in local markets. Apart from the delicious cuisine, La Braceria offers guests a cozy setting with its down-to-earth décor and rustic charm. The restaurant is the perfect rendezvous spot for families and friends with its hearty food and selections of wines.

SPECIALITIES AND HIGHLIGHTS OF THE RESTAURANT

La Braceria's kitchen is headed by Chef Giovanni Minarelli, whose latest menu embodies his experience and philosophy of making authentic Italian cuisine. Chef Giovanni's "forte" is in pasta, seafood and steaks, and with that, he is rather confident that he will impress La Braceria's patrons.

THE ACADEMY AND ITS OBJECTIVES

The Italian Academy of Cuisine, which is a Cultural Institution of the Italian Republic since 2003, was founded in Milan on July 29, 1953 by Orio Vergani along with a group of talented experts in the field of culture, industry and journalism. Its mission is to defend and protect traditional Italian Cuisine, and to promote its diffusion and improvement in Italy and abroad. The Academy works with public officials, entities, associations, public and private institutions, and it can authoritatively guarantee objectivity and neutrality in its judgements in the field of cuisine thanks to its independence from any and all commercial interests.

Through its Study Center and its Delegations in Italy and abroad, the Academy works to promote initiatives aimed at spreading a broader understanding of the values of traditional Italian cuisine. This constitutes the basis for all its concrete innovations.

Those people with a direct commercial interest in the restaurant industry or culinary schools are not eligible for admission to the Academy.

Tod's

Quality and creativity, tradition and modernity, with a strong international presence: these are the main strengths of the Tod's Group – leader in shoes, leather goods and ready to wear with Tod's, Hogan, Fay and Roger Vivier; brands which complement each other in the high-end market.

Founded in Casette D'Ete (Fermo), Tod's became established as a small shoe factory in the 1940's under the ownership of Dorino Della Valle, father of current President, Diego Della Valle.

Refined, understated luxury, impeccable taste and enviable quality: these are the elements that have always distinguished Tod's, and this is what has created the loyalty amongst the brand's fans around the world.

The idea of the iconic shoe was born in the late 1970s. Inspired by his travels to the States, where he discovered a relaxed attitude to dress, Diego Della Valle realised that people needed a beautiful, well-made shoe that could be worn in a professional, elegant or casual environment. He developed a design concept and this evolved into the now internationally renowned Tod's luxury moccasin, with its trademark 133 rubber pebbles on the sole. A new wardrobe "must have" was born. It was named the Gommino.

In 1997, Tod's expanded its collection, introducing a classic, modern yet chic bag collection with the iconic D Bag, which perfectly reflected the spirit, quality and design of the Tod's shoe collection.

We equip children with the academic and lifelong learning skills to be agents of their own success – helping to prepare them for further education, future careers or navigating the opportunities and challenges they will encounter in their lives.

To prepare students for an increasingly global world, we prize diversity and are proud to host students from over 60 nationalities, with no one dominant culture or background. All this makes GEMS (Singapore) a truly international school that prepares students to stay a few steps ahead of the future.

We place an emphasis on holistic development of every child. We are a systematic proprietary trading firm that deploys algorithmic alpha driven strategies across markets. Over the years, the company has developed a unique proprietary trading approach that involves analyzing a broad range of data points and technical indicators, known as The Mosaic System. The system, which was developed by AMF's founders, Luigi Granucci, Gianluigi Rossetti, Matteo Tamagno and Marco della Pedrina, adopts quantitative techniques to generate alpha and offers diversification from conventional style factors like value, growth, size and momentum. In utilizing this strategy, Asia Management Fund systematically uncovers sources of return with low targeted correlation to traditional asset classes. Our market-making and principal trading business is diversified across strategies and instruments, including equities, equity derivatives, foreign exchange and fixed income. Over time, we continuously refine our trading strategies to weather the ever-evolving market conditions. We employ strategies focused on the delivery of absolute returns, with low targeted correlation to traditional asset classes. Our rigorous risk management policies are designed to ensure that we are in control of the various elements of risks in our business, and we operate within predetermined risk parameters.

Asia Management Fund has recently hits a milestone with 100 consecutive months of trading without losses. The firm is currently in the process of developing an algorithm based on The Mosaic System. With the development and deployment of the algorithm, Asia Management Fund will be able to expand its coverage within markets. The algorithm will assist in monitoring markets to seek potential trading opportunities based on pre-defined rules of the Mosaic System and could enter positions as determined by a trader. Our vision is to become the leading quantitative trading firm in Asia, creating and maintaining a conducive environment where innovative and collaborative professionals thrive.

RESTAURANT

RISTORANTE DA VALENTINO Pte Ltd

Profile of Executive Chef Valtulina Valentino

Valentino came to Singapore in October 1997 and worked in a couple of restaurants in Singapore before starting his own, Ristorante Da Valentino, with his wife to fulfill his dream of running a restaurant together with his family.

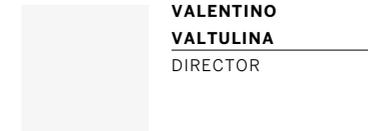

About Ristorante Da Valentino

With the help of his wife and support from his family, Valentino opened his very own restaurant in July 2005. Located in the residential area of Rifle Range Road, it was a cozy 45-seater restaurant furnished very much like an Italian home.

The restaurant relocated to The Grandstand, which is the former the Turf City, and it can now seat 120 people. Despite the bigger capacity, the restaurant manages to maintain its Italian ambience and continues to take pride in serving authentic food from Valentino's hometown, Milan. The restaurant also serves seasonal dishes just like restaurants in Italy, usually in small quantities, and serves them the day that they arrive in Singapore so that customers could enjoy the freshness of the seasonal dishes.

Valentino's Cooking Philosophy

Valentino believes strongly in serving authentic Italian food. He would go back to Italy every year not only to remain connected with authentic Italian food but also to source for interesting raw materials and create new dishes for his customers.

Founded in May, 1978, Farmindustria – the association of pharmaceutical companies and member of Confindustria – counts today about 200 national and foreign-owned member companies operating in Italy.

With 63,500 highly qualified employees, the pharmaceutical industry in Italy plays a leading role in the international scenario. The overall pharmaceutical turnover amounts to 30 billion euro, with exports accounting for 73% of manufacturing of the 174 companies located in Italy.

With 6,000 researchers and investments for 2.5 billion euro each year (1.2 in manufacturing and 1.3 in R&D), Italy is buttressing its pharmaceutical research commitment, as demonstrated by 303 Italian biotechnological products under development, also thanks to the cooperation between public and private centres of excellence.

R&D and manufacturing are also vital for the activity of vaccines, which constitute an excellence of pharmaceutical industry.

In order to guarantee the fairest behaviour Farmindustria member companies have adopted a Code of Professional Conduct - today one of the most rigorous in Europe - that regulates not only the relations between companies but also their relations with the scientific and medical community.

Farmindustria, which is a member of the European (EFPIA) and International federations (IFPMA), pursues the achievement of a stable legislative framework and the outlining of policies by which the key role of pharmaceutical industry in enhancing the knowledge-based economy can get the right recognition, which may contribute to consolidating industrial presence on the territory and investments in research and manufacturing.

In order to convey the importance of pharmaceutical industry and Research, Farmindustria has started a “roadshow” through the Associated companies’ facilities, with the aim of providing a live demonstration of the production of value. Farmindustria has also presented the Orologio della Vita (Life Clock), which measures the contribution of medicines to the increase in life expectancy, and has created the website www.farmacie-vita.it.

The logo comes in the form of a square shape to enhance stability and trust. The colours in the flags of both Italy and Singapore are reflected in the logo. The colours of the Singapore flag are positioned at the top portion of the logo in red and white while the colours of the Italy flag are positioned at the bottom portion, in green, white and red.

In view of the bilateral relations that ICCS bridges between Italy and Singapore in terms of economic, commercial and legislative connections, the red coloured portion leads our eyes from the left towards the right and ends at the letter 'S', which stands for Singapore.

On a geographical level, Italy is situated northwest from Singapore, thus the red area could also represent a directional bridge, linking Singapore to the north-upwards followed by the west-leftwards, strengthening the ties between Singapore and Italy.

This year, ICCS is celebrating the 30th Anniversary of our organization. This is the reason why you will find a different logo throughout the Directory 2021/2022.
